Interview with Jane Seymour

Shady Lady: Who was a funnier person to work with, Owen Wilson or Chevy Chase?

Jane: That's a hard one, because their humor was so different, but they were both seriously funny and incredible actors to work with.

Shady Lady: What was harder, writing a children's book or writing a book on home decorating?

Jane: The home decorating book was more time consuming, because of the many different set ups and photography involved in creating the book. It was a very natural and creative process for me, I enjoyed every minute.

Shady Lady: Which comes more naturally, painting or dancing with the stars?

Jane: Both, I started my life dancing and naturally transitioned into painting and acting. Art has been a passion of mine my whole life. Whether expressing it through dance, brush stroke, acting or creating home decor products.

Shady Lady: What was your favorite roll throughout your acting career?

Jane: That is a hard one, because I have so many. If I had to pick one it would be Dr. Quinn, because it was a reoccurring role for 7 years. The Dr Quinn crew became a family. We even have a yearbook from our last season.

Shady Lady: What is your favorite feature of your house?

Shady Lady®

L I G H T I N G

Jane: The way our home is designed takes advantage of the wonderful view of the Pacific Ocean and our amazing gardens. We eat organic food everyday from the garden and are able to work and play here, which makes life easier raising 6 kids.
